As you plot your course through the new business and economic landscape, TEC brings you two thought provoking speakers for this year's All TEC Day to inspire you in that challenge.

Michael Chaney, a leading figure in the Australian business community, will share his insights as to what makes an effective CEO, exclusively for TEC's WA members.

Jonathan Pain, renowned as one of Australia's sharpest economic forecasters, will also give you his global economic perspective of The New Reality, which will stimulate and challenge your thinking.

This will be a unique opportunity for you to hear two highly respected voices in one morning and will provide you with endless discussion points amongst your group for months to come. An occasion not to be missed!

Michael Chaney
The CEO as Effective Leader

What makes a CEO
an effective leader?

While there is no simple answer, because all organisations face different challenges, there are some common characteristics that help to ensure successful leadership.

Mr Chaney will present his perspective on effective leadership and what you can do in your business to promote better practices.

Mr Chaney is Chairman of the National Australia Bank Limited, Woodside Petroleum Limited and Gresham Partners Holdings Limited. He is Chancellor of the University of Western Australia, a member of the JPMorgan International Council and a Director of the Centre for Independent Studies.

Mr Chaney was appointed an Officer in the Order of Australia in 2004 for services to business and the community.

Jonathan Pain
The New Reality: A Global Economic Perspective

Over the last several decades the world has been described in terms of the developed and developing nations. Perhaps we should be talking of the submerging versus the emerging world? The emerging world is driven by the two most populous giants, India and China, whilst the submerging world is represented by nations such as Iceland, Greece, United Kingdom and America. Where do we sit in the divide between submerging and emerging and what are the key factors which will shape and define our world in the decades ahead?

Jonathan Pain will share his insights with members, painting a vivid picture of the global landscape based on his extensive research into the world's diverse economies and the behaviours that drive their fiscal engines.

Jonathan has 25 years of international investment experience including roles as Chief Investment Strategist of HFA Asset Management, Chief Investment Officer of Rothschild Australia Asset Management, Head of Investments at Gulf International Bank in Bahrain and Chair of the International Asset Allocation Committee at Paribas Asset Management in London.
